

PAPER FOR WATER

An Inspirational Charitable Opportunity

Bring the art of origami to your team and give the gift of clean water

About Paper for Water

In 2011, when sisters Katherine and Isabelle Adams were 5 and 8 years old, they learned that millions of people do not have access to clean drinking water.

They also learned that many girls around the world cannot attend school due to the necessity of hauling water. Katherine and Isabelle's original goal, to exchange origami designs for donations in order to fund a water well in Ethiopia, led to the founding of Paper for Water.

Paper for Water's primary function is to fund clean water projects and raise awareness about the world water crisis by empowering and engaging volunteers through the art of origami. Paper for Water is powered by hundreds of volunteers of all ages from businesses, schools, nonprofits, and churches.

To date, Paper for Water has raised over $2M, funded over 300 water and sanitation projects and impacts the lives of more than 85,000 people in 20 countries everyday.

Frequently Asked Questions

Can my team participate virtually?

Yes! We have worked with teams located throughout the United States and internationally. Paper for Water can host team building activities virtually and send the origami materials to your team members. An additional cost is required for businesses with team members working from home and requiring the origami materials to be sent to multiple households.

What will happen to the origami folded by my team?

Your team members may keep the origami to decorate their office space or home. If your team is looking for a volunteer opportunity, your origami pieces can be sent back to Paper for Water to support our mission to bring clean water to communities in need. Additionally your team's origami may be used as decoration at a DFW shelter, hospital, nursing home or other similar location.

What origami designs will my team learn?

The origami designs taught will depend on the length of time allotted for the team building event. In a typical one-hour team building event, Paper for Water can teach your team how to fold and assemble a 3D origami star.

Does my team have to fold origami?

Origami folding is not required. Paper for Water can provide an inspirational interview, or talk and share their mission and story with your team.

Does Paper for Water offer a discount for nonprofits?

Paper for Water is happy to discuss with nonprofits a lower sponsorship rate.
